Who is Ed Temple?

Ed Temple, for whom the stretch of 28th Ave N north of Jefferson St. is named, spent 44 years coaching the Tennessee State University women's track team, from 1950 until his retirement in 1994. During his tenure, TSU became known for its elite runners – the team under Temple sent 40 athletes to the Olympics, 13 of whom won gold medals. Perhaps most notable among Temple's pupils was Wilma Rudolph, who took home three golds at the 1960 Olympics in Rome, breaking the world record in the 100-meter dash in the process. Temple's service extended to a patriotic level as well: he coached the 1960 and '64 Olympic sprinters and even helped conduct track and field clinics in Eastern Africa on behalf of the State Department.
